traces the history of refugees and migrants within a reconstructed twentieth century middle east the idea of home in law displacement and dispossession explores an important set of legal and policy issues surrounding the concepts of home and homelessness taking a growing area of legal scholarship into the new arena of human rights and international law the collection considers the ideas concerning home both in the sense of the dwelling place as a special type of property and territorial claims to homeland which underpin many contemporary legal problems by examining a range of contexts where people are displaced or dispossessed from their homes the essays focusing on dispossession consider themes ranging from mortgage and rent arrears in the uk to responses to the foreclosure crisis in the usa and from eviction for the purposes of economic development in south africa to the exclusion of asylum seekers from the uk s social housing and welfare provision and within the framework of the european convention on human rights the displacement theme meanwhile examines transnational home issues from the experiences of exiles and refugees in areas of conflict to the impact of the broader context of economic social and cultural rights on attempts to protect housing and home through international law at the heart of each essay the contributors experts from across the fields of law policy and housing rights examine the circumstances in which displacement and dispossession take place and reconsider how law and policy respond to such circumstances with a particular focus on the impact of loss of home for the human person at a time of particular and increasing concern about security of tenure and the role of law and policy in protecting people who are vulnerable to forced eviction the idea of home in law presents a bold opportunity to raise questions about the rights and norms associated with housing and home and to generate new insights for scholarship and for national and international policy debates concerning displacement and dispossession

this volume explores the extent to which forced migration has become a feature of life in the middle east and north africa papers are grouped around four related themes displacement repatriation identity in exile and refugee policy providing a significant contribution to this developing highly pertinent area of contemporary research ayşe Çağlar and nina glick schiller trace the lived experiences of migrants in three cities struggling to regain their former standing showing how they live and work in their new cities in ways that require them to negotiate the unequal networks of power that connect their lives to regional national and global institutions more people were involuntarily displaced in the twentieth century than ever before and not only by war and natural disasters capital intensive high technology large scale projects compel the displacement and resettlement of an estimated 15 million people every year in the process of converting farmlands fishing grounds forests and homes into reservoirs irrigation systems mines plantations colonization projects highways urban renewal zones industrial complexes and tourist resorts aimed at generating economic growth and strengthening the region or nation these projects have all too often left local people permanently displaced disempowered and destitute resettlement has been so poorly planned financed implemented and administered that these projects end up being development disasters because there can be no return to land submerged under a dam created lake or to a neighborhood buried under a stadium or throughway the solutions devised to meet the needs of people displaced by development must be durable the contributors to this volume analyze the failures of existing resettlement policies and propose just such durable solutions this book assembles cutting edge contemporary research and thinking on multiple forms and meanings of displacements and their geographies patterns of shifting dislocation or putting out of place substitutions of one idea for another or the unconscious transfer of intense feelings or emotions activities occurring outside their normal context and replacements of one thing by another the covid 19 pandemic declared by the world health organization in 2020 produced new displacements and intensified existing patterns of displacement and dispossession at the same time socionatural displacements floods fires droughts hurricanes sea level rise species loss and dislocation were the backdrop to the displaced and deferred hopes of the 2021 united nations climate change conference the chapters in this volume contend with how we as geographers conceptualize and theorize displacements the range of sites spaces processes affects scales and actors we study with to understand them and what is at stake politically in how we research displacements it is also a pandemic archive of academic labor in which we find traces of displacements within and beyond the academic discipline of geography geographies of displacement s will be of particular interest to students scholars and researchers of geography including those interested in human geography socio natural displacements and the politics of migration and displacement the chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of annals of the american association of geographers this book delves into the issue of reparations in relation to palestinian refugees in their search for a solution to their displacement and dispossession highlighting the broad spectrum of reparations available as forms of remedy for a historical injustice the author probes the reasons behind the failure to reach a reparations agreement till the present day and discusses the significance of issues of apology recognition and acknowledgement of responsibility in its approach the book departs from traditional and modern perceptions of reparations as featuring in international law history politics and philosophy the analysis is focused on a comparative study of two other cases the german jewish reparations agreement of 1952 and the cypriot conflict in search of parameters that may constitute a framework to a potential reparations model applicable to the case of palestinian refugees when compared to the history of negotiations over reparations in the israeli palestinian case the findings of the comparison shed light on why reparations are still illusive the book thus offers an explanation of why reparations to palestinian refugees have failed and offers suggestions on how to enhance prospects for reparations to palestinian displacement and dispossessions a unique contribution to the study of the arab israeli peace process this book will be an important reference for scholars of the arab israeli conflict and for students and scholars of politics conflict resolution and history in migrants and city making ayşe Çağlar and nina glick schiller trace the participation of migrants in the unequal networks of power that connect their lives to regional national and global institutions grounding their work in comparative ethnographies of three cities struggling to regain their former standing mardin turkey manchester new hampshire and halle saale germany Çağlar and glick schiller challenge common assumptions that migrants exist on society s periphery threaten social cohesion and require integration instead Çağlar and glick schiller explore their multifaceted role as city makers including their relationships to municipal officials urban developers political leaders business owners community organizers and social justice movements in each city Çağlar and glick schiller met with migrants from around the world attended cultural events meetings and religious services and patronized migrant owned businesses allowing them to gain insights into the ways in which migrants build social relationships with non migrants and participate in urban restoration and development in exploring the changing historical contingencies within which migrants live and work Çağlar and glick schiller highlight how city making invariably involves engaging with the far reaching forces that dispossess people of their land jobs resources neighborhoods and hope this sociolegal study focuses on the political legal and institutional problems and dilemmas of regulating land tenure by studying the development of the timorese formal land tenure system this book engages in the larger debate about the role of state systems in addressing and aggravating social problems such as insecurity poverty inequality destruction of nature and cultural and social estrangement land tenure issues in timor leste are complex and deeply shaped by the nation s history taking an insider s perspective based on the author s experience in timorese state administration and through the investigation of five analytical themes political environment lawmaking legal framework institutional framework and social relationships and practices this book studies the development of the timorese formal land tenure system from independence in 2002 to 2018 it shows how political legal and administrative decisions on land administration are made what and who influences them which problems and dilemmas emerge and how the formal system works in practice the result is a portrait of a young nation grappling with the enormous task of creating a land tenure system that can address the needs of its citizens in the wake of centuries of socio political tumult and huge fluctuations in resources the book concludes by highlighting the importance of lawmaking and how abuses of power can be curbed by adequate administrative processes and laws finally it argues that land administration is primarily a political matter the political dimension of technical solutions must be considered if we aim to achieve fairer formal land tenure systems the pertinence of the topics covered the multi disciplinary perspective and the research methodology followed make this book appealing to a variety of readers including international organizations practitioners academics and students engaged in land administration post colonial and conflict issues lawmaking rule of law public administration and issues of access and exclusion making home s in displacement critically rethinks the relationship between home and displacement from a spatial material and architectural perspective recent scholarship in the social sciences has investigated how migrants and refugees create and reproduce home under new conditions thereby unpacking the seemingly contradictory positions of making a home and overcoming its loss yet making home s in displacement is also a spatial practice one which intrinsically relates to the fabrication of the built environment worldwide conceptually the book is divided along four spatial sites referred to as camp shelter city and house which are approached with a multitude of perspectives ranging from urban planning and architecture to anthropology geography philosophy gender studies and urban history all with a common focus on space and spatiality by articulating everyday homemaking experiences of migrants and refugees as spatial practices in a variety of geopolitical and historical contexts this edited volume adds a novel perspective to the existing interdisciplinary scholarship at the intersection of home and displacement it equally intends to broaden the canon of architectural histories and theories by including migrants and refugees spatial agencies and place making practices to its annals by highlighting the political in the spatial and vice versa this volume sets out to decentralise and decolonise current definitions of home and displacement striving for a more pluralistic outlook on the idea of home this book is a result of a master of arts sociology study that intended to explore using the materialist political economy approach the social processes and social relations which have been at work and are the ones responsible for the impoverishment and marginalization of the artisanal and small scale miners at epanko village in tanzania qualitative and quantitative research findings revealed that the miners mineral rights are unsecured and they have no security in their lives following threats to be dispossessed and displaced and it explains the abysmal living conditions of the same the social implications of the processes of accumulation by dispossession and displacement are outlined in this study the study concludes that the artisanal and small scale miners are subjected to dispossession and displacement because of the existing social processes and social relations a nationalist tanzanian state is recommended by the study to empower the local miners at the expense of the mining companies which dominates the territorial economy the book is recommended to the academics in social and environmental sciences and to policy makers and implementers with 78 specially commissioned entries written by a diverse range of contributors this essential reference book covers the breadth and depth of human geography to provide a lively and accessible state of the art of the discipline for students instructors and researchers this book s radical theory of police argues that the police demand for order is a class order and a racialized and patriarchal order by arguing that the police project in order to fabricate and defend capitalist order must patrol an imaginary line between society and nature it must transform nature into inert matter made available for accumulation police don t just patrol the ghetto or the indian reservation the thin blue line doesn t just refer to a social order rather police announce a general claim to domination of labor and of nature police and police violence are modes of environment making this edited volume argues that any effort to understand racialized police violence is incomplete without a focus on the role of police in constituting and reinforcing patterns of environmental racism post millennial palestine literature memory resistance confronts how palestinians have recently felt obliged to re think memory and resistance in response to dynamic political and regional changes in the twenty first century and asks in what ways do contemporary palestinian writers critically and creatively consider the possible futures of their nation this book is about home and international law more specifically it is about the profound and frequently devastating transformations of home that are happening almost everywhere in the world today and what international law has to do with them through three stories of home the desert home the lake home and the city home this book traces how the everyday operations of international law shape the material affective and imaginative experience of home it argues that international law s homemaking work is characterised by acts of domination practices of resistance and the production of unhomely spaces however the book also considers whether and how the liberatory potential of international law could be unlocked through the metaphor of home this book draws from fieldwork conducted by the author in palestine cambodia and the united kingdom it takes a global socio legal approach to home and international law informed by feminist political theory feminist geography home studies and contemporary critical approaches to international law it is the first academic work to examine the relationship between home and international law this book s global socio legal approach to home and international law will be of interest to those teaching and studying in international law socio legal studies legal pluralism and legal geography
